COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The State Aid reconstruction for Bethel should begin about Monday. The work will be on Vernon Street and start in front of John Deegan's house. It will proceed about 1300 feet in the direction of Main Street. The location and elevation of the street will not be changed very much when the work is finished, but it will be a little wider and a lot smoother. Unfortunately the 700 feet of street from the end of construction this year to Main Street will not come under the regular four unit state aid program. If the town wants the remaining 700 feet of Vernon Street reconstructed, the state will only match two units of town funds or $1,860.00 a year.

The assessors have finished their assessing work except for the mills. The Assessing Associates of Maine were hired to do some revaluation work and as soon as their figures are available the assessors can finish the assessment. The figures should be available on Aug. 21 and the work on the tax bills should start a few days later.

The road-side mowing is finished but the bush spraying is less than half done. The rainy weather has held up the spraying. The bushes should be dry before the spray is applied.

The grader is back after being rented by some of the neighboring towns. Some of our roads are getting a little rough and need scraping.

PAUL C. THURSTON

Paul C. Thurston passed Friday morning, Aug. 9, at Central Maine General Hospital, Lewiston, where he had been a patient since Monday evening, Aug. 5.

He was born in Newry December 2, 1887, the son of Jacob A. and Flora (Dinsmore) Thurston. He graduated from Gould Academy, Bethel, and Bates College in 1910. He married Elsie Hall, December 25, 1911, who died in 1924. He married Florence H. Perry, March 4, 1927.

At the time of his passing, he was President of J. A. Thurston Co., Inc.; Chairman of the Board of Rumford Bank and Trust Company; President of Gould Academy Trustees; Chairman of Maine Turnpike Authority; Trustee Bingham Associates; President Bethel Library Association; Trustee of Westbrook Junior College; Member Executive Board Rumford Community Hospital since 1930; member Rumford Rotary Club since 1929 which he served as President since 1936 and as District Governor of Rotary International in 1950-51. A member of the Bates College Club.

He was President of Rumford Bank and Trust Company since 1934 from which position he retired in January 1963. Over the years he served as a member of the Maine-New Hampshire Bridge Authority; member of the Maine Highway Commission 1933-1939 and as Chairman for five of those years; President of Oxford County Bankers Association 1950-1951; member of Committee on Survey of State Government and

$5,000 Loss in Wednesday Fire at Davis Planer Mill—Speedy Action Prevents Widespread Damage

The Bethel fire department responded to an alarm at about 7:45 Wednesday evening for a fire at the planer mill of the L. E. Davis Lumber Co., Inc., across the railroad track from Railroad Street. Prompt action confined the damage to the platform area of the mill.

A portion of the storage building next to the mill was blackened by the flames and heat, while lumber in a railway car on the siding adjacent to the mill was reported as undamaged. The box car was scorched before being moved away from the fire by a railroad crew.

It is estimated by Richard Davis that the damage caused to the mill by the fire amounted to $4,000, with about $1,000 worth of finished lumber destroyed. Operations should be resumed in about a week. The loss was partially covered by insurance. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

The quick action by the local fire department and volunteers checked the possibility of a fire of greater magnitude as there were gusty winds at the time. Much more property damage could have resulted as the lower end of the village would have been endangered.

12th ANNUAL MAINE MORGAN HORSE SHOW

AUGUST 18

The 12th annual Maine Morgan Horse Show will be held at the Poland Spring House, Poland Springs, on Sunday, August 18th, at 10:30 a. m. It is anticipated that there will be Morgans from several well-known out-of-state farms this year.

There will be 31 classes, including harness classes and special classes for 1/2 Morgans with papers, plus a Gay Nineties Class which is always colorful and interesting. As an added attraction, there will be a demonstration of the Justin Morgan Performance Class during intermission. Little Hawk, Morgan stallion owned by Norman and Phyllis Dwyer of Sunset Farm, Bethel, will participate in this demonstration.

In this class, one horse has to perform under saddle, in light harness, and drag a stone boat, plus running a half-mile flat race. Conditions at the ring prevent the demonstration of the last feat, however the other performances demonstrate the versatility of the Morgan breed.

Merrill Carlin of Richmond will be the guest of the Phillip Faudis, Friday.

CARD OF THANKS

My sincere thanks to my friends and relatives for the flowers, gifts and cards sent to me while in the hospital. Special thanks to the blood donors who kindly gave their blood. Your many kindnesses were greatly appreciated.

"Life is made sweet, because of friends we have made, And the things which in common we share; We want to live on, not because of ourselves But because of the people who care."

It's in giving and doing for somebody else— On that, all life's splendor depends— The joys of this life, when you've summed it all up, Are found in the making of friends."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor—

The public letter that appeared in your paper last week from the pen of some citizen who was perplexed about the closing of stores and other establishments during certain funerals has aroused a few comments. I studied the letter and listened to the opinions, and then wondered if anyone would venture to take time or consider the subject important enough to pen a reply. The letter appears to be conscientiously written and presents some things deserving of a reply. I herewith offer a few comments in the same spirit, just in case no one else ventures an answer. Actually, the writer has touched on three different problems.

First, customs and traditions, and whether or not they are outmoded. Customs and traditions are not based on size so much as on human relations and friendly concern. In our New England towns, and I suspect elsewhere as well, when some citizen died, who in life, played an important role in the affairs of the community; was perhaps, a merchant, a town officer, fire chief, lawyer, or served his community in some other civic capacity, it seemed to be the only human, respectful and friendly gesture one could make, to take time from business affairs to attend the funeral, or at least close the shop for a brief hour. The closing of the store involved no more than any other resident of the community who simply shut the door of his house and made his way to the place of the funeral service for a few moments of simple honor.

Has our life today become so impersonal and so economically complex, or have we allowed ourselves to become so deeply involved in a competitive business that the simple act of being human, friendly and respectful is outdated? It was a good custom, conceived in a time when a people were more closely knit as a community. Time was a commodity that could be set aside as of little importance when sized up against the experience of death visited upon a fellow citizen. It is still a good custom and passing years, changing ways and the size of the community ought not to lessen its value or make obsolete a simple act of being human.

Secondly, the writer raises an eyebrow about the matter of a person's "eminence" being a determining factor as to whether or not stores should close out of "due respect." There is no discrimination involved here. It is simply a fact of life with which we have to deal. After all, some people, by the very nature of their involvement in community affairs, become more widely known. It's as simple as that. Respect and gestures of respect concern more people to the degree by which the deceased was known. It is not a matter of goodness, worthiness or character at all. There are many persons living quiet and unassuming lives whose character, integrity and worthiness are just as sound as the most prominent citizen in a community. The fact of life is that the "eminent" citizen, by the very nature of his work knew and was in contact with more people, and more people knew him. At the passing of both, the eminent and the little known, the respect of the many or the few would bear the same stamp of genuineness.

A good illustration of what I mean has touched all of us recently. The premature death of the young son of President and Mrs. Kennedy gained world attention. Why not? They are a world family. But this is not to say that their personal sorrow is any greater than the sorrow of the hundreds of families every year who experience the same kind of tragic loss, yet the fact is known to only a very few. One gets world attention. The other doesn't make more than a few short lines in a local weekly paper. The same genuine grief is there and there is no lack of respect.

In any community like ours there are and always will be those for whom stores will close in respect and others whose passing will be mourned by a few, but honor, respect, sympathy, character, will be equally genuine. More people are involved in one than in the other.

Thirdly, the writer touches on a subject that ought to be, and has been a concern of the Chamber of Commerce, the need of a cooperative effort on the part of local merchants to draw up a code of business ethics and practices by which all would agreeably govern themselves. The closing or not closing of shops and establishments should be one of the matters considered. I personally, would hope that they might find virtue in carrying out the custom. I most certainly would assume that if they did, the salaried employees would not lose the time from their pay check. I have known communities where employees did suffer a financial penalty for the "respectful gesture" of the employer, but it was only a rare incident and I still believe in the basic humanness of people to act justly.

The writer is to be commended at this point for joggling the minds of the Chamber members. Perhaps some action will be forthcoming. Such a merchant's committee has been explored but the difficulty has been that a majority of the local merchants involved are not represented by membership in the Chamber of Commerce. This matter of cooperative action can best be solved by those who personally know the problems. I would hope that there might be an incentive to get together.

It has taken a lengthy effort to answer the letter of our citizen, but the writer dropped a lengthy subject in your mail box.

—An equally concerned Citizen

MAINE THREE-QUARTER CENTURY CLUB TO MEET AUG. 20

The annual meeting of the Maine Three-Quarter Century Club will be held at the Augusta State Armory, Tuesday, August 20.

The Maine Committee on Aging sponsors this club with the cooperation of the Lions Clubs of Maine. The Lions furnish transportation to all those members who have no other way of getting to the meeting. The presidents of the Lions Clubs can be contacted for transportation to and from Augusta. The Augusta Lions Club members act as co-hosts during the meeting.

This club, the only one of its kind in the United States, was founded in 1925. During the war years, the meetings were suspended and since 1947 they have been held annually. The Maine Publicity Bureau and the Lions Clubs of Maine sponsored the club until 1961. Since 1962 the meetings have been sponsored by the Maine Committee on Aging, at the request of Gov. John H. Reed.

The main speaker will be James C. Hunt, Regional Director, of the Office of Aging, U. S. Dept. of Health and Welfare. The club was recognized nationally in the July issue of Aging, a publication of the Office of Aging, the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

To be eligible for membership, an individual must be 75 years or older and register at the meeting or write to Mrs. William B. Williamson, Jr., Executive Secretary, Maine Committee on Aging, Vickery Hill Building, Augusta, Maine.

Members are requested to bring box lunches.
